Aiden Buxton

Project:

Acounter Counter Updated Risk Assessment

Risk Assessment
Risk 1: Application becomes to costly to publish
Likelihood of Risk: None - Will keep as a web app for the project.
Potential impact on project: No longer a worry.
Ways to address this risk: Now producing specifically a web app now.
Risk 2: Application could become complex to complete.
Likelihood of Risk: High - Application is relatively simple but the features keep expanding and intertwining.
Potential impact on project: Would make for heavy load times and increased bugs.
Ways to address this risk: Keep project focused on its basic goal and expand only when stability is proven.
Risk 3: Project will not be finished before required date.
Likelihood of Risk: Medium - If complications arise or prove to cost too much time this could become a serious issue.
Potential impact on project: Would force an unfinished project to be submited, resulting in poor reception.
Ways to address this risk: Make sure all checkpoints are met and expected progress achieved.